

Daniel Riveong

+34 687 34 45 32 daniel@pluralfutures.com

Profile

Daniel Riveong is an academically trained futurist and was a 2018 Emerging Fellow for the Association of Professional Futurists on Global South issues. Daniel's foresight work includes use of gaming for participatory foresight, workshop facilitation, foresight tools development, futures-related research, and report development.

In his previous career, Daniel was the Asian region GM for a digital consultancy in Kuala Lumpur. He co-led digital transformation workshops for Yves Saint Laurent to Fitness First. He has also co-presented papers with the Indonesian Statistics Agency.

Experience (Selected)

FORESIGHT CONSULTANT – 2012-PRESENT

Portfolio of foresight work includes game development, methodology development, reporting writing, facilitation projects with UNICEF Malaysia, Save the Children, the Basque Culinary Center and others. He is currently developing a diversity-focused foresight methodology and library at Plural Futures (pluralfutures.com), anticipated launch by June 2019.

EMERGING FELLOW AT THE ASSOCIATION OF PROFESSIONAL FUTURISTS – 2018

Wrote a series of thought-pieces on new models of economies and prosperity in the Global South.

GENERAL MANAGER, ESTORM, KUALA LUMPUR – 2011-2016

Established the Asian regional office for estorm, a digital consultancy based in San Francisco. Managed over 14 million USD in revenue with financial, luxury, education, and technology clients in Asia, Europe, and the US. Led workshop training on digitalization transformation for clients in Paris, Tokyo, and other locations.

Education

University of Houston – M.S. in Foresight, 2018

San Francisco State University – B.A. in International Relations (Security Studies), 2005

Skills

Foresight methodologies, operations management, toolkit development, digital transformation, business consulting, and report writing development.

References

Kal Joffres (kal@tandemic.com), CEO of Tandemic; Dr. Andy Hines (ahines@central.uh.edu) at University of Houston; William Gaultier, SVP of Branding at Lazada (william.gaultier@lazada.com).